ABOUT ME

Born and raised in what friends have described as a 'singing cult', a majority of my youth revolved around musical and thespian endevours. In my late teens, a series of curiosities led me into a digital technologies class. Equipped with an ability for calculus, and the creative capacity for photography, programming was an activity that enabled me to exploit my creative and methodical strengths; An art-form with rules, yet no bounds. Infatuated with this new venture, my life slowly transitioned from practicing piano to programming Python. From a wide range of previous endeavors, I've developed into a bright, bubbly, resilient and reliable man.

Today, I'm programming for a living, and for fun; Passionately blurring the lines between "work" and "life".

SOFT SKILLS

Team Player: My history is littered with participation in groups and teams, varying in size and role. Every team has different characteristics, but having a large pool of experience to reference, allows me to adapt quickly to many dynamics.

Verbal Communication: Experience from my thespian background has provided me with strong tools to communicate verbally in a variety of different situations. Client facing opportunities bare no barrier for me.

Personality: I have been described by teachers, employers and peers as: organized, enthusiastic, bubbly, reliable and hard-working. Facing the reality that working can be a struggle for many, I like to assist in making my workplace a space worth getting out of bed for.
